Flying Cows Get Knocked Out of the TBL Playoffs

Saturday, June 1st, 2024
Frederick, MD

The Flying Cows traveled back home after a tough Game 1 against Albany. Frederick was out in full force, ready to support them as they played in Game 2 of the first round of the TBL Playoffs in this win or go home game for the Cows.

The atmosphere in the Woodsboro Bank Arena was electric to say the least with Cow fans not ready for this magical inaugural season to end. We asked the fans of Frederick to bring "More Cowbell" and they definitely did and more. Both teams came out firing with the lead going back & forth for the entirety of the first quarter. At the break, the Patroons led 24-23.

The same back and forth trend continued throughout the second quarter. The Cows were able to tack on 26 second quarter points, again being led by Charlie Marquardt and Mustapha Traore, and took a 49-48 halftime lead. The Patroons

After the Patroons controlled the 3rd quarter. By the fourth quarter, the gym was as loud as any point this season and as loud as as any gym you'll hear in any level of basketball. For the Cows, all star Quentin Scott led the way with 8 big fourth quarter points while also being all over the court defensively.

Frederick was able to battle back in the fourth and take the lead on multiple occasions, but the road dog Patroons would not quit. While fans were ringing their cowbells and screaming their heads off, the Patroons hit their clutch free throw down the stretch and closed the game with a final score of 95-91.

The Flying Cows were led by Quentin Scott with 20 points, while Albany was again led by guard Ja'Quaye James.

The #1 seed and regular season champions of the Atlantic Northeastern conference, Frederick Flying Cows, fall to the #3 Albany Patroons 0-2 in the best of 3 game series. This loss puts an end to the Frederick Flying Cows inaugural season with an overall record of 20-6.
